GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 21 .- The reunion of non-resident native North reunion of non-resident native North Carolinian's forces here are now thoroughly organized, and at work. Headquarters at the Benbow Hotel have been opened, with Mr. Andrew Joyner in charge. The holices sent to the various papers throughout the country asking that names of former North Carolinians be sent here, are having the desired effect. During the last few days five thousand names have been received, and letters keep pouring in Inculries are being received from all sections of the United States. All the prominent former North Carolinians, without any exception, who have been asked to attend the reunion, have accepted. Other towns in the States are already anxious to secure the reunion in the future, and citizens of several towns have written here, asking that the reunion be held at their towns next year.

North Carolina's societies in the large Northern and Southern cities, are taking active steps towards being represented, are writing their cordial approval of the reunion ides.

IN BALTIMORE.

At its last regular meeting, Dr. Charles G. Hill, presiding, the North Carolina's Society of Baltimore, on motion of Mr. Walter Grimes, seconded by Dr. Rvisad O. Sadler, adopted the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That this Society heartily in the second."

"Resolved, That this Society heartily endorses the plan of holding at Greensboro, N. C., a reunion of natives of North Carolina, who are now resident in other States, and hereby pledges its co-operation in that movement."

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHILTON'S, VA., September 21.—The people of the Northern Neck are poseessed with an enterprising spirit second to none in this Commonwealth and there is no soil in the State that is better adapted to trucking and none better suited for stock raising, save the Valley of Vir-ginia. The most important need is a ginia. The most important need is a railroad.

About six years ago every county in the Northern Neck voted an appropriation of $30,000 for the purpose of assisting a syndicate in building a railroad from Fredericksburg through the Northern Neck to the Chesapeake Bay. Soon after the appropriations we're voted, the track was laid one mile from Fredericksburg.

At that time the Weems Steamboat Company, of Baltimore, bought the company off, and that is the last heard of the enterprise.

A railroad traversing the Northern Neck parallel with the Rappahannack and Potomac Rivers would prove a great benefit not only to the Neck, but to the city of Richmond also. There are no people who would delight more in patronizing the merchants and manufacturers of Richmond than would the good people of the Northern Neck, provided they had better modes of transportation than they now have.

So far they see but little hope of get-now have.

So far they see but little hope of getting a line lengthwise through the Neck for many years to come. That ting a line lengthwise through the Neck for many years to come. Their only hope to be benefited or benefit Richmond by a new railroad, is for some Richmond capitalists, who are interested in their city getting her share of the trade of the Northern Neck, to built a road from West Point, Va., eighteen miles across the country to Urbanna, Va., on the Rappahannock River.

That eighteen miles of new road would secure to Richmond a large share of the trade of the counties of King and Queen and Middlesex, and right much of the rade of the lower portion of the Northern Neck.

The people of the south side of the Rappahannock are anxious for such a railroad and so are those on the north sincerely hope that some of Richmond's enterprising citizens, who wish to make enterprising citizens, who wish to make a paying investment, will look into the advisability of building this new road in the near future.

Cars Piled High and Burned, Cremating Body of a Brakeman

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., Sept. 21.—As the result of a peculiar collision at the crossing of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Southern Railway's tracks at Boone, seven miles from Portsmouth, at 4 o'clock this morning, two long freight trains now block the railway there, a heap of smouldering ruins being all that is left of the cars and their tons of freight.

heap of smouldering ruins being all that is loft of the cars and their tons of freight.

One man was cremated in the wreck. He was Isaac West, a colored brakeman, from Pinner's Point. West was caught in the wreck and pinned down. Before the wrocking outfit, which was dispatched from Pinner's Point with all haste as soon as the wreck was reported, reached the scene, the debris took fire and the unfortunate brakeman was roasted alive.

Engineer Richard Carrington, of Selma, N. C., was seriously injured in leaping from his cab at the moment of the coliriston, He is at St. Vincent's Hospital, Norfolk, where it is said he has a chance of recovery.

The accident was an unaccountable one, but was probably caused by a misunderstanding of signals. The train using the Southern's tracks was going to the West Norfolk torminals, while the freight using the Atlantic Coast Line's tracks was coming in from the South.

This train plowed directly through the other train, which was covering the crossing. Freight cars were tumbled in eyery direction; the engine of the incoming train was wrecked and its train derailed. The mass of material piled on top the wrecked locomotive almost immediately took fire, and, closely following the wrecking outfit, a fire engine was seen from Norfolk to the scene. The fire was too hot for the firemen to approach it near enough to save poor West.

The ruins are still blazing and the traffic is completely blocked. All Coast Line and Southern trains are being sent via the Norfolk and Western tracks to Suffolk.

Timber Owners, for Want of a Little Advertising, Are Heavily Mulcted.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

COCHRAN, VA., September 21.—The resignation of Mr. H. P. Dalton as agent of the Seaboard Air Line at Cochran has caused widespread regret. He shared the strenuousness of starting and operating a new rallway, as the Seaboard was when he entered its service. His close and continuous devotion to the various interests he has managed so well for the company has impaired his health to some degree, and he resigns his position in order to rest and recuperate. His flawless integrity; his fine executive and business abilities; his untiring industry; his care of and attention to the slightest details of his work, conjoined with his experience, these all fit him for any position that the rallway service offers. No doubt, after a little resting spell, his company will offer him a position more commensurate with his merits and worth.

Mr. T. N. Jennings succeeds Mr. Dalton, and is making a very favorable beginning.

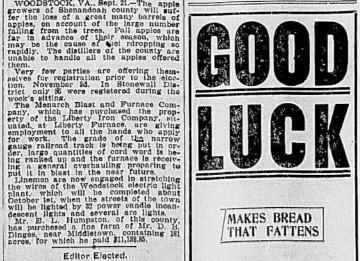

Most of the tobacco crop is housed. In the main, the tobacco is very good. The lack of sufficient help to save the tobacco while in its best condition is perplexing some of the larger planters. In many instances the colored "hands" hired for the year have left the farmer for the saw mills. How to do the work with one pair of hands that was cut out for three or four or five pair was the question that confronts him now that the crops were half grown, and it is the question that confronts him now that the crops are matured, Where the farmer was so fortunate as to secure white help, he still has that help, No white hand has deserted and left the farmer in distress.

he still has that help. No white hand has deserted and left the farmer in distress.

The hungry maws of the mills and mines are rapidly devouring the beautiful woods. In addition to swarming saw mills that destroy thousands of trees daily, whole forests of trees are being shipped North to be used as props in the mines. The middle man, the mill man, the railroad and the lumber dealer may be benefited by the destruction of our forests; but for the most of us it means ruined roads, broken bridges, and dreary, unsightly wastes, where once our noble forests lifted themselves heavenward.

It also means abandonment of the farm for the mills on the part of the hands that the farmer could heretofore hire. All this would be much more bearable if the farmer were getting ten value of his timber. Some valuable tracts were sold eight or nine years ago for less than one-fifth of their value. Much was sold last year for about one-half its worth. A fallure to use printer's ink in judicious advertising has cost the farmers of Brunswick who had timber to sell many thousand of dollars. A farmer would have a tract of timer to sell; some where was a man who wished to buy timber and who really needed it for his business purposes. But the farmer and the timber were. But there was one man that knew all about both the farmer and the buyer. He was the middle man; he would approach the unsuspecting farmer, mako

The New Fall Costumes

Will Appeal to the Fashionable.

Style-that all-important, indefinable something-is the keynote of this splendid range of autumn dresses.

Distinct, though indescribable you will find it here, as clear cut and as unmistakable as the sterling mark on solid silver.

Anybody who can wield a needle can make a dress, but the few who can put the ever sought evidence of style into them must be rated as artists, and from such makers, with all the insignia of impressive newness, comes the display we ask you to enjoy to-day.

Broad, mannish military shoulders in jaunty three-quarter coats and roundcut, graceful, useful skirts are the special attractions of the new productions.

Choose rough weaves or smooth ones, close or porus textures, fabrics have such a scope that your taste may run riot and still be right.

Prices start at $15.00, and the Gowns grow better, step by step, to $50.00 each. Here are Zibeline Dresses in blue and Cheviot Dresses in blue or black that are perfectly and handsomely trimmed and tailored, a credit to us and to any woman's wardrobe, on sale to-day at $15.00 each.

him an offer, talk him into accepting it, and then sell it immediately to the man who really needed it. And he would usually sell it to the real buyer at an advance, ranging from seventy-five to one hundred per cent.

In some cases, perhaps most cases, one deed represented both sales. The middle man, would offer, the farmer—let us say $1,000. The real buyer would pay the middle man $2,000; and the farmer would pocket his half of the amount, and make out the deed to the third party, just as if he had sold him the timber and received the whole amount. The extent to which our farmers have been victimized in this direction passes belief.

Had the man who bought the timber advertised his needs, or had the farmer advertised his timber for sale, both the buyers and the farmers would have been saved many thousands of dollars that have gone out of the farmers and buyer's pockets into that of the guileless middle man.
